Abstract

FACTORS WHICH INFLUENCE SCHOOL ADMINISTRATORS’ KNOWLEDGE OF SPECIAL EDUCATION LAW

by

Harolyn Joy Katherman

December 1998

The purpose of this study was to examine the relationship between professional characteristics and training of building level school administrators in Virginia and their knowledge of special education law. The research question was, to what extent and in what manner can school administrators' knowledge of special education law be explained based upon administrative position, school level, number of special education courses, number of school law courses, and experience?

Knowledge of special education law was a total score on a survey instrument developed by Hines (1993) and updated to include eight areas of the 1997 Amendments to IDEA. A second part of the instrument collected information on professional characteristics and training. The survey was mailed to school building administrators throughout Virginia. The subjects in the study were randomly selected from Virginia public K-12 schools. Sampling was stratified by school level and wealth. The data were analyzed using a step-wise regression. Number of special education courses accounted for 4% of the variation in knowledge. Number of school law courses completed also entered into the analysis but had an inverse correlation with knowledge. The average knowledge score for administrators in this study was 18 or 56% correct.

Identification of factors which have the greatest influence on principal knowledge of special education law can be used to plan effective preparation of school building administrators. School building administrators who are knowledgeable of special education law can ensure the protection of the rights of disabled students, build positive relationships within the community, and avoid costly litigation.
Dedication

This dissertation is dedicated to my mother, Elizabeth, who always celebrated my accomplishments and to my father, Harold, who had to stop his own education to help provide for his younger brothers and sister. He encouraged me over many years as I pursued my education and I am confident that his spirit has seen me reach my goal.
Acknowledgements

I would like to thank the members of my committee for assisting me in completing this study: Dr. Mary Yakimowski, Dr. Robert Richards, Dr. Lewis Romano, and especially Dr. Diane Gillespie.

I would also like to thank the school administrators in Virginia who gave of their valuable time to complete the survey used to gather information. Their professional commitment to research in their field is appreciated and respected.

To my dear friends, Denise and Betsy, thank you for being there.
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Abstract .............................................................................................................. i

Dedication ........................................................................................................ ii

Acknowledgments ........................................................................................... iii

List of Tables ................................................................................................. vii

CHAPTER I   THE PROBLEM .......................................................................... 1

  Background .................................................................................................... 1

  Statement of the Problem ........................................................................... 3

  Purpose ......................................................................................................... 5

  The Research Question ............................................................................. 5

  Definitions ................................................................................................... 5

  Limitations .................................................................................................. 6

  Summary and Overview of the Remaining Chapters .................................. 7

CHAPTER II   REVIEW OF RELATED RESEARCH ....................................... 9

  Students With Disabilities and The Law .................................................. 10

    The Constitutional Foundation .......................................................... 10

    The Judicial Foundation ....................................................................... 11

    Formative Legislation ............................................................................ 12

    Entitlement for Students With Disabilities .......................................... 14

    Significant Judicial Decisions .............................................................. 15

      Procedural Safeguards ....................................................................... 15

      Appropriate Evaluations ................................................................... 18

      Free and Appropriate Public Education ........................................... 20

      Parent/Student Participation ........................................................... 22

      Least Restrictive Environment .......................................................... 22

    Significant Re-authorizations ............................................................... 27

    The 1997 Amendments to I.D.E.A ....................................................... 28
Free Appropriate Public Education..........................29
Appropriate Evaluations.................................33
Individual Education Programs..........................35
Least Restrictive Environment..........................36
Parent/Student Participation............................37
Procedural Safeguards.....................................38
Administrators and Special Education..................45
School Administrators’ Knowledge of Special Education Law ...46
Summary.......................................................50

CHAPTER III METHODOLOGY........................................51
Population and Sample....................................53
Instrumentation.............................................53
Data Collection..............................................55
Method of Analysis.........................................56

CHAPTER IV RESULTS OF THE STUDY..........................58
Analysis of the Data.........................................58
Descriptive Characteristics of the Sample.................58
School Level and Administrator Knowledge of Special Education Law.......................................60
Position and Administrator Knowledge of Special Education Law..............................................60
Experience and Administrator Knowledge of Special Education Law..........................................61
School Law Courses and Administrator Knowledge of Special Education Law.................................62
Special Education Courses and Administrator Knowledge of Special Education Law..............................63
Intercorrelations.............................................68

CHAPTER V DISCUSSION............................................71
Response to the Research Question.......................71
Discussion ...............................................................71
Directions for Further Study.............................73
Special Education Courses..............................73
New amendments ...........................................73
Principal certification ......................................73
Content and timing of courses .....................74
School Law Courses ......................................75
Content and timing ........................................75
School Administrators ..................................76
Experience ..................................................76
Management focus ........................................76
Level of knowledge ......................................77
Effect of survey items ....................................78
Timing of the survey ...................................78
Types of knowledge ......................................78
Adult learning and administrative preferences ....79
Comparing Virginia administrators with other states......79
School Districts .............................................80
Systems for staff development ......................80
Expectations .............................................80
BIBLIOGRAPHY ...............................................82
APPENDIXES ..................................................85
LIST OF TABLES

1. Case Law and Six Principles of the 1997 Amendments .................. 31
2. School Administrators’ Identification of Factors Which Influence Special Education Law Knowledge .......................................................... 52
3. Sample Stratified for Wealth and School Level .......................... 54
4. Domains Based Upon IDEA ...................................................... 57
5. Frequency of Respondents by Fiscal Classification ..................... 59
6. Frequency of Respondents by State Superintendent’s Regions ........ 59
7. Frequency of Respondents by School Level .............................. 60
8. School Administrators’ Knowledge of the Law and School Levels .... 61
9. Frequency of Respondents by Position ...................................... 61
10. Frequency of Respondents by Years of Experience .................... 62
11. Frequency of School Law Courses ......................................... 63
12. Frequency of Special Education Courses .................................. 64
13. Frequency of Responses to Survey Items .................................. 65
14. Intercorrelations of All Variables .......................................... 69
15. Step-wise Multiple Regression for the Explanation of Building Level School Administrators’ Knowledge of Special Education Law from Experience, School Level, Position and Training ....................................... 70