ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The completion of a successful dissertation is a long journey. In essence, it is an academic “odyssey.” From the beginning of my academic odyssey at the Center for Public Administration and Policy, many have contributed to my educational and learning experience.

First and foremost, I would like to thank my family for their encouragement and support over these many years. Their encouragement and support have made my academic odyssey indeed worthwhile.

I would like to thank my Dissertation Committee Chair, Dr. Charles T. Goodsell, who spent many long hours reviewing my draft material and offering valuable suggestions for improvement. He made my academic odyssey easier by being an outstanding mentor and by setting rigorous standards for scholarly research. I remain deeply indebted to him. Many thanks go to my Dissertation Committee: Dr. Susan J. Buck, Dr. Jeff J. Corntassel, Dr. Orion F. White, and Dr. James F. Wolf. They all provided me with outstanding advice and feedback during the writing phase of my dissertation and they helped me to remain focused on the broader issues of my research.

I am also indebted to Catherine R. Byrnes of the Center for Public Administration and Policy in Northern Virginia who provided me with numerous advice on a variety of administrative matters. Finally, I am indebted to the many friends throughout the years at the Center for Public Administration and Policy in both Blacksburg and in Northern Virginia.
